

I just can't understand why the FCC or any other organization would want to come down on satellite radio. If I'm paying $10 a month to have these services, what gives the FCC the right to govern them? I pay my money to hear the things that I want to hear, instead of the things that I don't want to hear on FM/AM, and I can listen to them all the way accross this country. FM radio has gone to the birds with awful morning programs that nobody really wants to hear, but some people have not discovered the real sound of satellite radio. I myself am a major Nascar fan and enjoy listening to the programs on satellite radio, and most of the time, Nascar can not be found on AM/FM. Let's put the "Free" back in "Free Country". Let's find other things for congress to do besides governing satellite radio. Isn't there worse things going on in America besides a bunch of good people paying good money to enjoy something?
